The Japanese cook who advertised in the APPEAL a few days ago secured a place in the family of a State officer.

One morning he was addressed with: "You sabe rice and curry?" "Don't 'sabe' me. I'm no Chinaman. I'm a Japanese and a gentleman an you can hunt another cook right away," was the reply and he walked out of the house as soon as he could pack up.

WHAT ON EARTH—Is the reason people will not, cannot, or do not see any difference in cheap nostrums put up by Cheap John houses or irresponsible parties at enormous profits, rather than take a medicine of world wide reputation and one that is giving universal satisfaction at equal price? HOLSTEIN CATTLE.

A Rare Chance to get the Chiefs.

In another column the State advertises that it has Holstein cattle for sale, which it will exchange for hay at low prices.

Some years ago publisher of the APPEAL shipped some Holstein cattle to this State. They were furnished by the well known firm of Smith, Powell and Lamb, and imported from Holland.

It was the first Holstein stock ever brought to Nevada and the writer honestly believes the best.

The bull "Saratoga" (H. H. B. 3,300) has downed every competitor, and its biggest victory was when took the sweep-stakes medal over Leland Stanford's prize winner "Neeni Vootman" that had taken first prizes wherever exhibited in California.

The writer brought the cattle to this State for two purposes. One was to make money and the other to give the dairymen of Nevada a better strain of milk stock than they owned. No sooner however was the good qualities of this breed advertised, when the State (which by the way lacked the enterprise to take the initiative step in the cattle importations) purchased the four last animal left from an auction sale of 100 Holsteins at the Sacramento Fair and immediately began to compete with a Nevada breeder whom it declined to patronize.

After the State got into the ring as a Holstein cattle breeder, it broke the market with cheap stock and gave the breed a black-eye by working the prices of thoroughbreds a trifle above common cattle. The services of the State bulls are now at the disposal of anyone without money or without price. This is poor encouragement for Nevada cattle breeders.

The proprietor of the APPEAL after three years of experiment, finds himself unable to compete with the State of Nevada in the breeding of blooded cattle, and is now retiring from the business. He is weary of paying taxes on his own herd to help support the Experimental Free for all Breeding Stations at the Orphans Home, and announces that people desirous of purchasing thorough Holsteins three-quarters or half-breeds can get them at almost any price, by applying at the Holstein ranch. No reasonable offer refused.

A Strong Resolution.

LYNCHBURG, Va., Aug. 21.—The State Farmers' Alliance yesterday adopted the following:

Resolved, That the State Farmers' Alliance of Virginia intends to grasp the hands of Alliance brothers of the North and are determined to hold together with locked hands, in spite of all efforts to cause sectional prejudices between us, until the financial emancipation of the laborer and producer is accomplished.

The hint in the APPEAL to the woman who was bleeding several married men in this city has caused her to leave for fresher pastures. A full description of her will be sent to her California destination and an endeavor will be made to bring her back here on a charge of attempted blackmail. She is regarded as about the coolest and most cold-blooded character that ever operated in this city.

The great war between those who drink and those who do not, seems to promise endless strife. The APPEAL suggest that an easy way of settling the question would be to let the people who do not drink, all live in the Prohibition State. And those who like todies, to settle up the portions of the Union where no temperance laws exists.

The "original package" men of Iowa have come to a general agreement to close up business and not contest the constitutionality of the new law of Congress. There were 15,000 of these saloons in Iowa.

A Reference to Last Winter.

A. Wise and A. McArthur were at old Battle Mountain yesterday examining mining claims owned by the former. A horse was found at the face of one of the tunnels, two hundred feet from the entrance, having died some time last winter. From the position the carcass was found in, the conclusion is that the animal, through brute instinct, sought shelter by entering this narrow tunnel while a terrific snow storm was raging, and after going far enough to avoid the elements, attempted to turn to make an egress. Failing in the attempt, the animal continued advancing until impossible to proceed further and horse like would not back out, but stood at the face of the mine and succumbed to starvation. The suffering endured by stock in the months of January and February is illustrated every day.—Nevadan.
